9:15 Discussion Group, Topic: “Critical Thinking ”

10:30 Service: — Rev. Kathy Tew Rickey, The Transcendental Club. Established September 12, 1836, the Transcendental Club included an A-list of American scholars and thinkers led by Ralph Waldo Emerson. Their purpose was to explore an Eastern-influenced philosophy that exceeded the confines of a staid New England Unitarianism. We will take a look at American Transcendentalism and its relevance to us today.

I'll be glad to attempt to help (at no charge) if you should need a notary. - Phil

Life Long Learning Fall 2020

What do Aging, Cancer, and the Short Life of the Bay Scallop, Argopecten irradians have in common?

Steve Estabrooks

Wednesday, September 22, 2020, 4:00—5:30 p.m.

Argopecten irradians is a common name for Atlantic bay scallop or bay scallop. Dr. Estabrooks will discuss his research on Argopecten irradians, their reproductive cycle, and their lifespans. A bay scallop can double its weight postspawning and storing nutrients in the form of carbohydrates, lipids, and protein for an upcoming winter.

Steve Estabrooks has a PH.D. from the University of Rhode Island. He has worked in hospital laboratories and conducted research in marine biology on the island of Nantucket. He has taught courses on advanced biology, whales, chemistry, criminal investigations and marine biology to high school students.

Two Hundred Years of Great Scientists
William A. Hilburn
Wednesday, October 14, 2020, 4:00—5:30

When people think about the greatest scientists in history, most focus on two: Sir Isaac Newton and Albert Einstein. Though these two individuals both contributed to our understanding of the world and changed the direction of science during their lifetime, they are separated by 200 hundred years of the most profound and amazing discoveries. In this talk Drew Hilburn will discuss the contributions of the other great scientists during this 200 year interval, which enabled Einstein to enhance and extend one of Newton's greatest accomplishments.

Drew is an Advanced Placement Physics teacher at Mainland High School and is currently serving in his 27th year. He has taught physics at the junior high, high school and college levels, and was recently named teacher of the year at Mainland High School.

Early Developments in Christianity
Reverend Kathryn Tew Rickey
Wednesday, October 28, 2020, 4:00—5:30

In the early years following Jesus' death, his disciples and followers were left to ponder his teachings and live into them as best they could. Among the earliest Christians there were varied thoughts and beliefs not only about what Jesus taught but also about the nature of his human existence. Reverend Kathy will take a look at some of those varied beliefs and at a few non-canonical gospels. Then she will turn our attention to the key people and events which led to today's Christianity.

Kathy Tew Rickey is an ordained Unitarian Universalist (UU) minister. She serves the UU Congregation of Ormond Beach. Rev. Rickey has served congregations in Rochester, Syracuse, and Cortland, New York. She also served as a hospital chaplain in Rochester. Before becoming a minister, Rev. Rickey was a banking consultant and continuing education teacher. She raised two daughters and several dogs while living in various places in the Eastern U.S. Over the years, she has taught many adult and youth religious education courses in the context of congregational life.

When the missionaries came to Africa, they had the Bible and we had the land. They said, "Let us pray." We closed our eyes. When we opened them, we had the Bible and they had the land. - Bishop Desmond Tutu

What was the pre-colonial spirituality of Africa? To get a bit of a feel for the transition that Desmond Tutu refers to a bit tongue in cheek? For answers, join us at a series of lectures by Robert Whiting and/or read Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie's novel The Purple Hibiscus.

This series is offered by the African American Cultural Society and the Unitarian Universalists of Ormond Beach on Zoom with opportunities to dialog with other participants and the presenter.

Robert Whiting is an AACS Gold Lifetime Member. He has done over 30 years of research on Africa, particularly Nile Valley Civilizations. Mr. Whiting studied the Medu Netcher (Egyptian Hieroglyphs) under the tutelage of Ankh Mi Ra, the only African American to write a grammar book on this ancient African language. He has sat at the feet of some of the world's most preeminent African scholars and went on a study tour to Kemet (Egypt) with Dr. Charles Finch, an internationally renowned Nile Valley Civilization scholar and lecturer. Mr. Whiting has lectured in a variety of settings including universities, schools, churches, and community groups up and down the East Coast
